We are going to be building a "do it all" education app that would have flashcards, a math problem generator, and some way for people to spell better. The unique part of our project will be a skill level tracker, so that people can see if they're getting better or worse, and maybe a leaderboard that would give people competition in the app, so they have a motivation to get better.